Bill Donovan, who was snowed out of atteiding the American League meeting, arrived last night, and brought with him all the deeds and contracts binding the Yankees to the City of Savannah for the coming spring training trip. Seemingly sophistication i not among the faults of the Southern city, "All the faus down there are just crazy to see the Yankees," said Donovan. "I've made arrangements for the team to use the grounds of the South Atlantic League team and to work in the Y M. C. A. gyminasium on days when we can't get outside. It's warm enough for a good work-out down there right now."

"I suppose those American League magnates offered you a bunch of lemons when they were here." suggested Denovan to Captain Huston.
"On the contrary," replied the captain, "they were most considerate, and showed a great regard for the welfare of the Yankees. They didn't offer meanybody."

The proposal of Charles H. Ebbets to have the Yankees and the Superbas meet in a couple of games at Paytona is hanging fire. Savannah is a night's ride from the Brooklyn training camp, and none of the men in the Vankee councils seem to be overenthusizatic about the plan.

Nothing definite has been decided yet.

Nothing definite has been decided yet in regard to the spring series between the clubs at Ebbets Field, but it is probable that it will be played.

As an alternative there is a possibility that one or more engagements between the Gianta and the Yankees can be arranged. The schedule of the Giants is full, but it might be possible to amend it in order to catch the big crowd which would turn out to see the meeting of the men of McGraw and Donovan on the Saturday before the season opened.

Marlin yearns for the Giants. Henry Fabian has dusted off the diamond. In fact, he had to do a little more than that, for John R. Foster received a letter vesterday in which the groundkeeper wrote that he found the grounds in the Texas resort covered with snow, the Texas resort covered with snow, the Texas resort covered with snow, the Giant Resolution of the Superbus from now on. He wrote yesterday that he was studying wrote yesterday that he was studying hard at Wake Forest College in order to pass all his examinations before the training season begins. Judging from the tone of his message the issue is still in doubt.

Governor Tener refused to commit himself yesterday on the possibility of the National League's going back to its old player limit in order to conform with the action taken by the American League. "It may be that the question will be reopened," said the Governor, "but that is a matter which the club-ewners must decide."

CHAMPION NOT EAGER TO COME TO TERMS

YEARLY GROOMING Harvard Coach Wants to

"Kid" Williams, the bantamweight champion, has fought his first battle in the featherweight class, and although some critics found much to carp about Johnny Kilbane has not rushed into any matches with him. Jack McGuigan, manager of the National A. C., and Jack Hanion, of the Olympia A. A., of Philadelphia. are bidding against each other for the contest, and the latter has offered a purse of $8,000, which is $500 more than McGuigan declared himself willing to give. With such a glittering pile of gold to be earned for eighteen minutes' work, there is little doubt that the managers of the champions will come to an agreement.

Sam Harris, manager of Williams, is holding out for his pound of flesh with all the tenacity of a Shylock. He insists that Kilbane weigh in at 122 pounds ringside, while the featherweight champion haughtly demands that the contest be at 122 pounds, weigh in at 6 o'clock in the evening. That was when negotiations first began. A few days ago he declared that he would box at 122 pounds two hours before the contest. Harris laughed him to scorn when this proposal was made. Sam insisted that if Kilbane could weigh in at ringside as well.

The stand of Harris is supported by the boxing critics. Surely a difference HAS LOTS OF WORK E. K. Hall Insists Few Changes
